HOUSE SIDE STEPS ELECTION MATTER

Bill Is Tabled and Election Question Undecided--Eighteen Bills Intro- duced In Senate

MANY CONSTITUTIONAL MATTERS PRESENTED

Another effort was made to have the legislature declare for another state election in November, but the proposition met with the same fate it did at the regular session. The joint resolution was laid on the table.

In the house three more bills were introduced. They are the public examiner bill by Kerr and Lewis, one providing for a state purchasing agent, by Bradner, and an anti-lobbying bill, by Irvine.

By the committee on good roads, regulating the operation of motor vehicles on public highways.

By Hall of Cochise, a measure designed to provide for the early publication of decisions rendered by the supreme court of the state.

By Jacobs of Maricopa, creating a new state board of control and state purchasing department.

By Brooks of Gila, providing for the supervision and examination of banks by a commission consisting of three state officers.

Eight bills were introduced in the senate yesterday bringing the total number so far introduced in that body up to fifteen. These bills covered a wide range of subjects.

Among the more important were bills providing for the office of state engineer and making an appropriation to cover the state highway work, a measure providing for an inheritance tax; a bill providing for the formation of Boulevard districts; an anti-white

Slava act, a bill providing for the publication of the names of owners and stockholders in newspapers, and a bill to make up the present deficiency in the state road fund.

By Hughes, providing that cities may increase their indebtedness over the 9 per cent limit now observed to not more than 15 per cent, for the purpose of installing public utilities.

By Hughes, creating the office of legislative reference librarian, who shall also be state law librarian and state historian, with a salary of $3000 per annum.

By Wood of Maricopa, creating a state board of deposit, providing the powers and duties of the same.

By Worsley, a workmen's compulsory compensation act.

By Worsley, an act to protect labor and providing punishment for delinquent labor.

By Davis and act creating the office of state purchasing agent.

By Simons, act providing for the payment of expenses of superior court judges.

The senate also acted upon the congressional joint resolution providing for an amendment to the United States constitution whereby United States senators shall be elected by the people. This measure was placed on such a condition that that it will be passed today, thus making Arizona the second state in the union to act upon the resolution. The other state that acted favorably is Massachusetts.

Seek to Amend 8-Hour Law to Apply to 'Change Day'

M. C. Hankins, who is connected with the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas, is in the city today on his way to Phoenix to appear before the special session of the legislature, seeking revision in the proposed eight-hour law for smelter and mine employees. The bill was introduced in the senate by State Senator A. A. Worsley of Pima county.

The desired revision would change the text of the bill only to such an extent as it applies to change days in the shifts.

The bill provides that all employees working in mines, smelters or other hazardous occupations shall not work more than eight hours in 24, and makes no provision for an elasticity in working hours when it comes changing shifts. This will work a hardship on miners unless it is restricted in that respect, Hankins claims. He is going to Phoenix as the representative of the employees of the Copper Queen and Calumet and Arizona smelters.—Citizen.

FIRST MAYOR VISITS TOMBSTONE

Col. J. P. Clum, Distinguished Pioneer Arizonan Visits Scene of His Early Activities

WAS FOUNDER OF TOMBSTONE "EPITAPH"

After an absence of 26 years, Col. John P. Clum, the first elected mayor of Tombstone, yesterday quietly and unostentatiously visited the historic precincts over which he presided as municipal executive in 1880.

Without revealing his identity he walked alone along the thoroughfares of the city and was filled with emotions as he recognized some of the landmarks inseparably linked with the historic and turbulent incidents of a city whose fame is nation wide.

Here indeed was one whose identification with the city of sepulchral name, during the perilous frontier days, when her sturdiest men, stout of heart and undaunted spirit, helped materially in building and maintaining an industrial metropolis in the heart of Apache land, conquering a daring and lawless element and preserving the irresistible march of civilization, the thrilling and absorbing story of romantic history, past glories and intrepid daring, which is part and parcel of Tombstone's interesting page of border history.

Col. Clum was one of the founders of the Tombstone EPITAPH, having with his two other distinguished associates, C. D. Rippy and Thos. Sorin—Tombstone pioneers still identified with the upbuilding of the state—issued THE EPITAPH May 1, 1880, which for 32 years since has never missed a regular issue.

Col. Clum took a pardonable interest in viewing THE EPITAPH plant and grew eloquently reminiscent of the early editorial trials and incidents which beset the vigorous policy of the fearless journal, whose unique and euphonious title, embracing at once the grim humor attending the discovery of Tombstone, won for it lasting distinction in journalistic circles, and a fame synonymous with the world-wide reputation of the only Tombstone itself.

During all the active years of governmental service and extensive travels, Col. Clum, the veteran Indian agent and pioneer journalist has ever fondly cherished the memory of early associations of the city he faithfully and efficiently served as mayor, postmaster, city judge and scores of official positions in the palmy days of its existence and is still known as "J. P. Clum of Tombstone," a badge of honor deservedly bestowed upon her worthy citizenship.
